

List of Homework Questions: Math 270

Below is a list of homework questions for the course. As the syllabus describes, you need not do all of these homework questions—just as many as you feel you need to before you understand the concepts. Within each section, some homework questions are grouped together because it is a collection of questions that all ask essentially the same thing. Be sure to try at least a few from each of these groupings. Move on to a new grouping of questions only when you feel confident in your abilities. Keep in mind that many of the quiz and test questions will come from these homework questions – both easy and hard. Thus, go outside your comfort zone when doing homework questions and do not content yourself with just being good at the easy questions.
